Baltimore County Public Schools implemented Apex Learning to meet students at their level of learning and provide a more personalized and engaging experience.

Ryan Imbriale, Executive Director of the Department of Innovative Learning explained, “The need that we found for Apex was really about transitioning the work we were doing around opportunities for students. When we looked at what Apex was providing, it was the ideal solution for us, because as we transformed our classrooms we transitioned into an entirely new delivery system for how we looked at opportunities for kids. It was a natural match.”

With the course content that Apex Learning offers, students are right where they need to be in their learning progression. As a result, Imbriale notes, “students develop a natural deep interest in the content, and the content that Apex provides enhances that interest because it is very engaging.”

“[We were looking for a new direction, where we could really meet students where they were and be able to provide that just-in-time support for them.]”
